

Governor Congratulates WSP for Receiving Two Prestigious Honors

Gov. Chris Gregoire announced on August 16, 2012, that WSP was awarded two prestigious honors.

The International Association of Chiefs of Police (IACP) has named the Washington State Patrol the best state police agency of its size for 2011. WSP competed against other state police agencies with between 1,100 and 2,500 employees.

“This is no surprise for those of us who work directly with the men and women of the State Patrol,” Gregoire said. “I’m very pleased that an outside, objective organization would come to the same conclusion.”

WSP was similarly honored by IACP in 2006 and went on the following year to be named the best police agency of any size.

The second recent honor comes from the American Association of Motor Vehicle Administrators. WSP Chief John Batiste was personally honored with AAMVA’s Martha Irwin Lifetime Achievement Award.

A statement from AAMVA read, “Under Chief Batiste’s leadership, citizens of Washington have seen an impressive reduction in fatal collisions, consistently exceeding national averages...”

“Chief Batiste began his career as a front-line trooper determined to reduce the number of highway deaths and collisions,” she said. “He has grown to lead and mentor so many others in that role that he has become perhaps the single greatest influence on traffic safety in our state. This is a great honor for a humble person who is always quick to share the successes of his team, but rarely takes any credit.”

Founded in 1933, AAMVA represents state and provincial officials in the United States and Canada who administer and enforce motor vehicle laws.

The IACP is the world’s oldest and largest nonprofit organization of police executives, with over 20,000 members in over 100 different countries.

WSP Receives Over 400K for Helping the FBI

Chief John Batiste and Lieutenant Ken Wade accepted a check for $433,796 from the U.S. Marshal's Office as part of a federal asset-sharing agreement administered by the U.S. Marshal's Office.

The money comes from a 2010 case where the Spokane County Sheriff's Office Criminal Investigation Unit and WSP's Investigative Assistance Division provided assistance to the FBI with an investigation of a Spokane Valley business involved with illegal financial structuring practices.

The WSP Honor Guard presented the Colors at a Mariners vs. Twins game on August 18, 2012.

Maybe the Honor Guard brought good luck to the Mariners...the Mariners beat the Twins, 3 to 2. They should have them back more often.

Academy Food Service Manager Receives Distinguished and Devoted Service Award

Debra M. Piper, Training Division Food Service Manager, received the WSP's Distinguished and Devoted Service Award on September 18, 2012, at the Academy.

Piper was hired on September 17, 1984, as a temporary cook and was promoted to Food Services Manager on October 8, 1992.

Piper is responsible for the ordering, planning, and preparation of every meal served at the Training Division. In a typical year, her team serves over 35,000 high quality nutritious meals to students attending training at the Shelton Academy.

Piper takes great pride in her culinary staff, and it shows. She is an advocate for her staff, and is truly proud of their accomplishments. Under Piper's watchful eye, the culinary staff has passed all food service inspections and has received rave reviews and gratitude from every cadet class, Criminal Justice Training Commission Traffic Week, and other visiting students throughout her 29 years of service at the Academy.

WSP Awards Life Saving Awards to Three People Who Tried to Save a USS Reagan Sailor

WSP recognized David Sellers from East Bonney Lake, Wash., Electronic Systems Technician 1st Class Jean-Paul LeVeck and Cpl. Eugene Westgate, Naval Base Kitsap Police Officer, with the Life Saving Award on September 20, 2012, at the District 8 Office in Bremerton. The three men risked their lives in an attempt to save USS Ronald Reagan sailor who drove into the water south of Bremerton on the morning of February 24, 2012.

All three swam over 100 yards into the freezing waters in the dark dawn hours in an attempt to rescue the driver.

Sellers and LeVeck, who had witnessed the collision, immediately entered the water and swam to the submerged SUV. They were able to cut the man out of his seatbelt but he resisted their efforts to remove him from the vehicle. They were unsuccessful and ultimately ordered back by rescue units. A Navy rescue boat arrived and an Officer Westgate from Naval Base Kitsap entered the water. This officer was able to get the now unresponsive driver out of the car and ultimately swam the victim back to the shoreline where CPR was given. Tragically the driver perished from the collision.

Although the effort was ultimately unsuccessful, we felt it was important to recognize their heroic and selfless efforts.

WSP's Response During the Wildfire Season

When the snow falls this winter many of the wildfires that threaten communities and burned large areas of Eastern Washington are finally expected to be out. Throughout this year's fire season, WSP's role was two-fold. The Washington State Fire Marshal's (WSFM) Office worked the fire mobilizations, allocating resources and equipment to the people fighting the fires. District troopers were supporting county sheriff's offices, city police, and wildfire incident commanders with road closures, evacuations, and law enforcement support.

The State Fire Marshal's role in the Fire Mobilization Plan is to approve and assist in the process for the mobilization of fire service personnel and equipment. This happens once the local fire jurisdiction or region has expended all available local and mutual aid fire resources in attempting to manage a wildfire to protect life and property.

"Exhausting all local and mutual aid resources is the most critical step in the Fire Mobilization approval," said Paul Perz, Assistant State Fire Marshal. "Our actions to grant approval are in response to a request from the local fire chief and with the support from the regional fire coordinator."

An important step in the approval process is to record the time Chief John Batiste approves the plan. "That's the time when we start picking up all the costs for the fire," said Perz.

Once Chief Batiste gives approval for the Mobilization Plan, the WSFM's Office will immediately deploy deputy state fire marshals as the agency's field staff to assist the Incident Management Team (IMT). The field staff will usually remain deployed to the wildfire until fire demobilization occurs.

"Expectations are that the field staff will be the local subject matter experts on the mobilization plan," said Esther Hernandez, Deputy State Fire Marshal. "We will provide guidance to the IMT on agency business practices with regards to the plan, where mobilization resources can and cannot be used, and ensure the local fire district is tied in with the IMT and our folks," said Hernandez.

The largest fires this year burned mostly in the District 6 area. Troopers assisted the county sheriff and the fire incident commanders during the mobilization with evacuation notices, road closures, and a law enforcement presence.

“Even before the fire mobilization happened, our troopers and CVD officers were out assisting with road closures and helping to evacuate families and their livestock,” said Lieutenant Kandi Patrick, District 6 Acting Commander. “Lieutenant Scott Martin even went back into an evacuation area for a family to retrieve their medicine that got left behind,” she said.

Troopers also assisted the sheriff’s offices by handling calls for service when the county deputies were busy assisting with the fire response.

“Our first-line troopers did a phenomenal job; they did their jobs in very hazardous air quality conditions,” said Patrick. “I am very proud of our troopers, not only for how they stepped up and took control of the district, but how well they worked with the other law enforcement agencies.”

Social Media and the Washington State Patrol

Article by Jessica James, Kent Hernandez, Bob Calkins

You've probably heard the term "social media" before and may have wondered how it and the WSP fit together. At first glance they don't seem as if they should have much to do with one another -- social media is for finding out what your friends are doing on vacation, and the State Patrol is more concerned if your friends get safely to that vacation destination.

Well, technology has changed in recent years and WSP is embracing that change.

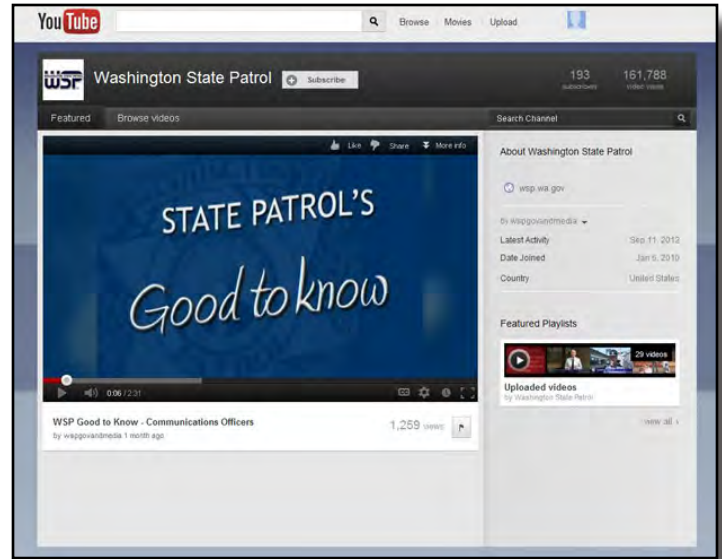

In 2009, the Government and Media Relations office (GMR) realized that social media could be a valuable communications tool and obtained a Twitter account for the agency. It wasn't until July 2010 that they decided to dig deeper and that summer was a fateful one. GMR and the Web Support Team from the Information Technology Division (ITD) crossed paths and a partnership was formed; GMR was committed to engaging the people the State Patrol serves and had enthusiasm to try new ways to do that, and the Web Support Team had the technical experience and know-how with web-based technologies like social media.

Together they could see the great potential of social media as a way to communicate and engage the community. GMR outlined the business and public relation requirements, such as record retention and public disclosure, and the Web Support Team found technical solutions, ensured privacy and security were maintained, and provided guidance on how to talk to the Twitterverse (i.e., the people who make up the Twitter community). Together, and with many of the agency's Public Information Officers (PIO's), the WSP has seen the value of social media.

- With social media, WSP can now directly engage the public without filtering by traditional media. People hear our messages from our lips.
- With social media, WSP can quickly respond to legitimate questions or criticisms – and often turn them into positives! During the January 2012 ice storm, people were complaining mightily about the closure of the Tacoma Narrows Bridge. Those complaints turned to expressions of gratitude when PIO Trooper Guy Gill from District 1 posted pictures on Twitter of the ice chunks that were falling from the bridge cables. Travelers realized how dangerous it really was once they got a good look at those ice chunks!

- With social media, WSP can reach special interest audiences that the agency couldn't before. We don't have to rely on traditional media to carry a story that might only be of interest to motorcyclists, or fitness enthusiasts, or outlying geographic areas – we put the messages out there and those exact people have direct access to our content. Also through retweeting, reblogging, sharing and liking, those messages make their way to narrower audiences.
- With social media, WSP has grown relationships with the community. In District 1, PIO Trooper Guy Gill is known as “Trooper Guy” to those that follow him on Twitter (@wspd1pio). When people ask questions, he answers; when they see something suspicious, they know “Trooper Guy” will listen. Those who are interested in becoming a trooper for WSP know they can ask Trooper Recruiter Pete Stock (@troopercareers) anything about the testing process and he'll have answers for them.
- With social media, WSP can immediately respond in emergencies. During the January 2012 winter storms over 150 “tweets” (140 character messages) were sent by PIO's in Districts 1, 2, 7 and 8. They kept the public abreast of up-to-date road conditions, locations of collisions, and shared safety tips on what to do if you spin out and go into a ditch, or what to do if traffic signals are not working. One tweet alone reached over 53,000 account holders in a matter of minutes.

The WSP has only scratched the surface of what can be accomplished with social media. With help from WSP's public information officers throughout the state, GMR and the Web Support Team are committed to working together to serve the people of Washington in the digital world as well as the physical one.

The Ospreys of District 2

By Bruce Lane

It starts around mid-April, when the mornings are still cool enough to wreathe the fir-scented greenbelt in translucent white mist, yet warm enough to let you know Old Man Winter has packed up for another year. Among the buzzing chirps of chickadees, the trilling of robins, and the eerily beautiful call of the varied thrush, a sharp flute-like note cuts through the still air. It heralds the annual return of some very special visitors.

Since 2006, the communications tower at District 2 Headquarters has held more than antennas, cables, and lights: Its top platform, nearly 200 feet up, is home to a mated and breeding pair of North American Ospreys. They've produced at least one, sometimes two, successful hatchings each year.

Ospreys are unique among raptors (birds-of-prey), with a diet consisting almost exclusively of live fish. Their excellent eyesight allows them to spot movement under the water's surface; they will then dive feet-first into the water, grab their prey, and lift off with it using powerful wings which can reach a span of more than five feet.

Their feet are well-adapted to this task. Rather than the more common three-forward, one-back configuration of their toes, ospreys have a two-forward, two-back configuration. Combined with tiny hook-like protrusions on the lower surface of their feet, this helps them to keep a good grip on their slippery meal.

Although ospreys are a relatively common sight across the country, all but the southernmost populations (in Florida, and other parts of the southeast US) are migratory. Our pair is likely to winter in Mexico or South America, departing around early September. Their nests can be quite large, up to eight feet or more in diameter, and are built from a combination of sticks and grasses. The nest stays in place year-round, the birds tending to any necessary repairs or maintenance when they return in the spring.

Ospreys will usually build their nests on top of large trees, rocky cliffs and promontories. They will, however, build a nest on the ground if the site is free of mammalian predators. It has become increasingly common to see them nesting on top of man-made structures. In many cases, nesting platforms have been built specifically to attract them away from dangerous sites, such as high-voltage transmission towers (Seattle City Light installed such a platform in Tukwila in 2011).

These birds are protected under federal and state laws, and they are quite protective of their young, so you should avoid climbing or disturbing any structure bearing a nest. If you wish to take still pictures or video, please do so only from the ground or from the roof of a building not attached to the structure.

I would also suggest not parking within 50 feet of any nest-bearing structure, unless you like the idea of being decorated by discarded fish parts, molted feathers, and a very 'fresh' paint job!

Trooper Tony Radulescu Memorial 10k/5k Run/Walk

On July 28, 2012, over 200 runners and walkers came out to the Training Academy in Shelton for the Trooper Tony Radulescu Memorial 10k/5k Run/Walk. Also taking part in the event to help motivate their moms and dads were kids riding in strollers, on bikes, or on scooters. The run/walk and BBQ picnic afterwards was sponsored by the WSP Athletic Association.

WSP's Missing and Unidentified Person's Unit Conducts Child Safety Outreach in Tumwater

Members of the WSP's Missing and Unidentified Person's Unit (MUPU) participated in the Tumwater Albertsons grand re-opening event on August 22, 2012. Parents that stopped by the event received child safety information and had their children fingerprinted for a Child Identification Kit.

MUPU staff also answered questions from people about the State Patrol's role in Missing Persons/Children investigations and gave parents information on different ways they can keep their children safe.

In the photo, Mei-Ping Murray and Alexis Newton from WSP's MUPU make copies of the child's fingerprints for the parents to have in their child's identification kit.

District 2 Teams Up With Fellow Law Enforcement and EMS to Educate the Public on the Dangers of Distracted Driving

WSP, King County Emergency Medical Services (EMS), and the City of SeaTac Police Department participated in an interagency initiative to educate the public regarding the dangers of distracted driving. Of particular concern are drivers attempting to talk on their phones or text and drive.

The safety emphasis started on Sept. 17, 2012, in SeaTac. As the new school year begins it is imperative for drivers of any age to be aware of the dangers of distracted driving in order to keep pedestrians and other drivers safe.

According to the National Safety Council, cell phone use was a factor in 24% of all crashes in 2010. Using a cell phone while driving, handheld or hands-free, delays a driver's reaction as much as having a blood alcohol concentration at the legal limit of .08, according to a 2009 study by the University of Utah. Even worse, a driver that is texting is impaired at the level of .16, double the legal limit.

WSP Celebrates Chief for a Day With Kids at CJTC and in Walla Walla

The 2012 Chief for a Day celebration at the Criminal Justice Training Commission in Burien was held on August 16, 2012. This year's WSP Chief was Alex Penny. Alex is 11 years old and is entering the sixth grade. He loves playing video games and board games. Alex was diagnosed with Duchenne Muscular Dystrophy at age three and is now permanently wheelchair bound. Despite his physical challenges, Alex is a positive force in his community and always has a smile on his face.

Chief Penny and the other nominated Chiefs and Sheriffs were sworn-in at a ceremony at CJTC. After the ceremony the Chiefs received lunch and then able to experience presentations given by local law enforcement agencies, which include demonstrations by K-9 units, mounted patrols, SWAT, rifle units, a police helicopter, and the WSP Honor Guard.

The Chief for a Day event celebrates the lives of children who have been diagnosed with a chronic illness.

The Walla Walla Chief for a Day event was held on August 7, 2012, at Pioneer Park. This year's WSP Chief was Braydon Stemple. The Chief for a Day program was established to honor children who have a life-threatening illness or disability, or other special circumstance. This year WSP honored a military family. Chief Braydon was chosen because his dad was serving overseas and has recently returned home.

Chief Braydon received a custom made uniform and badge and was officially sworn in by the Honorable Judge Donald Schacht.

This was the second year of the Walla Walla "Chief for a Day" event. The swearing in ceremony of the Chiefs was the kick-off event for National Night Out, an annual crime prevention celebration

WSP Recognizes an Employee for Over 50 Years of Service

WSP retirees join John Mittman for a group photo with Captain Jeff Otis, District 4 Commander, after he awarded Mittman his retirement award for 51 years of service with the patrol.

Mittman was a trooper for many years and after retirement worked as a volunteer at District 4. One of his many roles was to coordinate the district's volunteer activities.

Seattle Storm Honors Local Heroes

Trooper Tony Brock, District 2 Bellevue, was recognized for his service to his community by the Seattle Storm during their "Hero Appreciation Night" on September 16, 2012, at the Key Arena in Seattle.

Trooper Brock is a former District 2 Trooper of the Year and has held several specialty positions during his 13 years with the WSP. He is currently a member of the Target Zero Team. In 2005 he received an Award of Merit in recognition of his courageous actions, despite sustaining a broken back, to rescue a subject from a burning vehicle. Trooper Brock recently received the Medal of Courage for his involvement in a pursuit where he was injured during the apprehension of an individual suspected of stealing a car on February 2, 2011.

The Seattle Storm is a professional basketball team based in Seattle, Washington, playing in the Western Conference in the Women's National Basketball Association (WNBA).

WSP Scientists Enjoyed the Thrill of Olympian Games During Annual Cookout

The Seattle Forensic Laboratory Services Bureau facility celebrated a Laboratory Cookout on a bright, sunny, short-sleeved day on September 20, 2012. Their theme this year was in celebration and semi-continuation of the London Olympic Games. This was the fifth all lab celebration - previous annual celebrations included Hawaiian Day, Pirates of the Parking Lot, the 80's, and "Minute to Win It".

The events of these Olympian Games included several that should be considered carefully by the better known competitions that occur every four years. The Circular File Toss, the Extreme Staple Pull, and the Office Chair Relay provided some of the best competition seen in these games.

As the photos show, the games included wire-to-wire competitions, the exhilaration of victory and agony of defeat, and the always popular "I win, you lose" competitive spirit of such well-conditioned athletes/scientists. The sunny weather provided a great day of relaxing and enjoying each other's company!

Remembering WSP's History

The Washington State Patrol Historical Committee is trying to capture WSP history. They are looking for as much history as possible before it's lost. They want to make a history of all the badges and who had badges, humorous and memorial experiences, and much more.

Our retiree's history is rich with stories and experiences, so whether you're commissioned or merit, did or didn't have a badge, let's get our history written down and sent in so it's not lost.

The Washington State Patrol recognizes and honors the officers who served with distinction and died in the line of duty during the months of August and September.

Trooper Ivan Belka died on August 18, 1951, at the age of 38. A vehicle failed to yield to Trooper Belka's paddy wagon. He died from injuries as a result of this collision which occurred in Spokane. At the time of his death, Trooper Belka served 8-1/2 years with the Washington State Patrol.

Trooper John Wright was commissioned September 10, 1951, in the 16th cadet class. He was assigned to the Spokane Valley detachment. Wright died June 28, 1953, of injuries after he was struck by a hit-and-run driver on East Sprague Avenue at Barker Road in Greenacres, east of Spokane. He was 28 years old.

Weight Control Officer Joseph Modlin died on August 15, 1974, at the age of 60. He was killed when he was struck by a logging truck trailer while walking toward a second truck at the Home Valley weigh station on Highway 14, seven miles east of Stevenson. At the time of his death, Officer Modlin had served six years with the Washington State Patrol.

Trooper Ernest Eichhorn died on September 16, 1958, at the age of 33. He was killed by a drunk driver while directing traffic in front of the Puyallup Fairgrounds during the Western Washington Fair. At the time of his death, Trooper Eichhorn had served twelve years with the Washington State Patrol as a trooper.

Trooper Gene Bolstad died on September 3, 1957, at the age of 29 attempting to rescue a teenage boy in the surf at Long Beach. Both were caught in an undertow. At the time of his death, Trooper Bolstad had served 2-1/2 years with the Washington State Patrol.

Trooper Vernon Fortin died on September 30, 1923, at the age of 25. Trooper Fortin was injured when his motorcycle collided with another patrolman's motorcycle while they were en route to the Lynden fair for traffic duty. Trooper Fortin died five days later from his injuries. At the time of his death, Trooper Fortin served 18 months with the Washington State Patrol.

Trooper Clarence Johnson died on September 8, 1968, at the age of 26. He was killed when he was hit head-on by a pickup that crossed the center line on a curve between Fall City and Carnation. At the time of his death, Trooper Johnson had served 18 months with the Washington State Patrol.

Letters Letters Letters

E-mail received from a citizen thanking Klaudia Ochocka, Correctional Records Technician 1, Criminal History Support Unit, for her assistance:

My name is Peter Lenton, and I would like to relate a wonderful act of kindness that an employee of the Criminal Records Division did for me. I had non-conviction data that was muddled up by an attorney who, while going for an expunction order in 2003 (despite my strenuous and vocal objections) went and had said non-conviction data vacated, which I found out in Washington State (the hard way), makes for a condition unfavorable to a defendant. This was found out by him this last year (2011-2012) when he tried to get non-conviction data deleted through the Washington State Patrols' record deletion process, and it was denied (unfortunately, he failed to make me aware of what had happened). I later hired another attorney, who I am happy to report was more competent, and petitioned the Court for a record expunction, which was granted in Pierce County Superior Court on August 21, 2012.

On August 23, I went to purchase a firearm, and was denied during the NICS check. I had incorrectly assumed that the expunction order was instantly transmitted to the FBI. Prior to 2011, I usually got a delay while they sorted it out, but I was always able to proceed. I called up the State Patrol Criminal Records Division that day, and my call was taken by an incredibly pleasant employee by the name of Klaudia. I explained what happened with the expunction hearing and the NICs denial, and she politely and concisely informed me that it normally takes about 14 business days to process and transmit data to the various entities that need to be informed, including the FBI, which I didn't know at that time, and that a vacated disposition was what likely held me up due to the term having a negative impact on one's criminal record.

I explained to her I had filed an appeal with the FBI NICS section just before calling her, and asked if there was any way possible to transmit the expunction order to the FBI faster, as I sent a copy of the expunction order with my appeal, but felt it would have more weight if it was backed up with the same information from the State Patrol. Klaudia said she would do her best, and would notify me via phone when it was transmitted. True to her word, I received a telephone call at my residence from Klaudia on Wednesday, August 29, 2012, informing me that she had transmitted the expunction data to the FBI's Records Division. Today, Thursday, August 30, 2012, I phoned the FBI's NICS Division and was notified that my appeal was granted, my record cleared, and I would be receiving a letter in the next few days verifying those facts. Needless to say, I was overjoyed, as this has been a heavy weight on my shoulders.

Although she could have just had me wait, I feel Klaudia went above and beyond for me, a person she does not know. Because of her dedication to the fine organization she's employed by, and the dedication to the public she serves, she helped one person during a time of crisis in their life, and I wanted her and those directly above her in supervision to know how much that meant to me. I thanked her profusely over the phone, but that just didn't seem enough. You have a kind, compassionate, and professional employee in Klaudia, and it is personnel such as she that makes the Washington State Patrol the finest law enforcement agency in this great country!

Warmest Regards,
Peter A. Lenton

E-mail received from a citizen thanking District 4 troopers for their assistance:

My brother and I were taking a motorcycle trip through the Spokane area on the September 3, 2012, when we became separated. I thought something bad had happened to him. I found a trooper by the side of the road on Highway 35 North; he helped me search the ditches of the highway. He then took all the information of my brother's description and radioed it in. Well within two hours your troopers had found him and phoned my business in B.C. to relay the info to me.

I cannot say how much your troopers and staff impressed me with such speed and dedication to the job.

Thank you,

E-mail received from a citizen thanking District 2 troopers for their professionalism and conduct:

WSP;

On Sunday night, Sept. 2, I was interviewed by two of your officers in consequence of an utterly bizarre encounter with another motorist on I-90 just east of Issaquah. This note is to advise you that the appearance and conduct of both officers was in the best tradition of the WSP and both should be recognized as outstanding and a credit to your department. I have the identity of only one officer, Trooper Dustin Drout, badge number 433, but the demeanor and professionalism of both of these fine, young men deserves recognition.

Yours truly,

E-mail received thanking troopers for their work on SR 512:

To Whom It May Concern:

I just had the delightful opportunity of watching a video in which a Washington State Trooper went completely "out of his way" in delaying rush hour traffic while a duck and her young family managed to safely make their way across a very busy highway, with the assistance of a very kindly and dedicated State Trooper.

Things have changed an awfully lot since I was young, and it seems increasingly difficult to find anything positive and uplifting in the news these days with increasing violence all around us.

The video of this particular Washington State Trooper not only served as a real bright spot in my day, but that Officer is clearly a genuine credit both to your department, to the state, and to the community and citizens whom he is sworn to serve. He stands as a genuine "hero" in my book, and I just wanted to share my personal feelings of thanks and gratitude for both the spirit and compassion of a man such as this.

Bright Blessings To All,
Robert J. Humphrey
Brookings, Oregon

E-mail thanking Forensic Scientist 1 William Bogen for his professionalism and dedication to service:

Good Afternoon,

I am writing on behalf of the City of Bremerton Prosecuting Attorney's Office. I would like to extend my great appreciation to Bill Bogen. We are currently in trial in Bremerton Municipal Court on a DUI in City of Bremerton v. Cedric Leonhardt.

The trial was originally set for last week, but I had a funeral to attend so it had to be continued. Bill notified my office that he would be on vacation the first week of September and not available for trial. The defense initially agreed to stipulate to Mr. Bogen's testimony and certifications, but later the attorney changed his mind and filed documents seeking his appearance. Unfortunately, those documents were filed when I was out of the office for the funeral. After further discussions about Mr. Bogen's availability, the defense attorney continued to vacillate about whether Mr. Bogen would have to appear.

As we prepared to go to trial this morning, the City Prosecutor's office decided it would be easier to proceed with Bill rather than take a chance that the court would continue the case or force the City to proceed regardless of his availability. This is a second time

DUI offender who refused all field sobriety tests and was not stopped for any erratic driving. The breath test is critical to our case. I called Bogen this morning at home at 8:00 a.m. He was amazingly gracious in light of the fact that he was on vacation and he had been told we would not need him. Bill showed up to testify on short notice and was professional in his attitude and attire. Within a few minutes of reviewing the paperwork he was ready to testify on behalf of the City and did so with absolute confidence in every aspect of his testimony.

Too often in the law enforcement, great performance is overlooked and small errors are magnified. I personally believe that we all have to work together as a team and Bill was essential to our team today. I cannot thank him enough for his willingness to appear and testify.

For now we will await the jury's verdict....

Yours Truly,
Gina Buskirk
Bremerton City Attorney
Criminal Division

E-mail received thanking Trooper Karey Reisdorph, District 3, for his assistance:

My husband and I were stranded on Highway 12 at milepost 378, between Pomeroy and Dayton, on Wednesday, September 5. We called AAA at 5:45 p.m. and they said they would have someone there within an hour. Our friends that were traveling with us left for home when we heard that. After an hour and a half we had not seen nor heard from AAA. I called them again and they said they were having trouble finding a tow truck. To make a long story short – it was getting dark and cooler. My husband and I are both 77 years old and didn't want to be out there alone on a busy highway after dark. After several more phone calls to AAA, they called the State Patrol and a very nice Officer Karey came to our rescue and stayed with us until a tow truck showed up at 10:00 p.m. He will never know how glad we were to see him and how much we appreciated his presence. I do not know his badge number, but he is based in Pomeroy. He said he would not leave until help came. I would like to highly commend him for his compassion and caring. He is an asset to the Patrol.

E-mail received thanking Trooper Sergio Cervantes, District 3, for his assistance:

Hi,

I would very much like to formally thank Trooper Cervantes in the Tri-Cities area for his courtesy and consideration when he helped me on Thursday, September 6, on westbound Highway 82 between Tri-Cities and Prosser. It was late at night and a potentially dangerous and personally scary situation that his professionalism prevented from becoming something worse. I was driving a work vehicle that became temporarily disabled in an area I didn't know well. I was unsettled and not able to think clearly about how I should help myself get back on the road. He advised me and transported me to and from a place where I could get the help I needed. I think he is a credit to his organization.

THANK YOU, TROOPER
CERVANTES!

Sincerely,
Shelley Singer

E-mail received thanking Trooper Kyle Burgess, District 1, for his service:

I want to personally let anyone listening know that you have an excellent officer on your hands. Officer Burgess is someone to cherish as an employee and sets a prime example on the dedication and high moral values WSP portray. Officer Burgess went above and beyond; he took care of the citizen and made sure the outcome was civil and forthcoming. I could not say enough positive things about my encounter with Officer Burgess, please let his commander know that they have an invaluable officer on their hands that shows the public the commitment he has to his work.

Thank you so much,

Thank you officer Burgess!

E-mail received thanking Trooper Charles Stewart, District 8, for his service:

Greetings,

I am writing this letter to commend the conduct of Trooper Charles Stewart of District 8. On Memorial Day he saved my life. I was out of control. Continuing on with my reckless nature would have led to the inevitable injury of an innocent person or me. I take responsibility for my actions and without his assistance my revelation would have been delayed or perhaps never come to fruition. I thank him for standing up for something good. One day I hope to do the same. Please don't drink and drive.

E-mail received thanking District 1 Staff for their support:

I served with the WSP family for approximately five years before leaving to work for a smaller agency in 2010. On January 12, 2012, I was informed that I have an inoperable brain tumor. For a time I did not know if I would survive, let alone return to work in law enforcement. After months of treatment and multiple MRIs, I have been cleared to return to full duty shortly.

When news of my medical condition reached my former coworkers and supervisors of the Patrol, they immediately set out to help both morally and financially. They raised a large sum of money for me that took the pressure off when the medical bills started to roll in. This gesture meant more to me than I can ever express, and truly endeared the Patrol as forever family.

The following is a list of people who helped me in my time of need:

Lt. Ron Mead
Sgt. Troy Tomaras
Trooper Jill Hannem
Trooper Gary Gooch
Trooper Collin Overend-Pearson
Trooper Chris Frederick
Trooper Dan Nashleanas

E-mail received thanking Trooper Morgan Mehaffee, District 4, for his professionalism and service:

I just wanted to complement the WSP on one of their officers. I was stopped on the afternoon of September 22 by Trooper Mehaffee for driving my dump truck in the left lane of the freeway near Broadway. Having lived here my whole life, I had somehow never noticed the signs along the highway stating that was prohibited. Even though that must have seemed ridiculously unlikely to him, he was very polite and let me go with a verbal warning. I would like to thank Trooper Mehaffee for treating me politely, and pointing out my error, rather than just giving me a citation which he could have easily done.

Thank you,
Daniel J. Dyer

Letter received from the Spokane County Prosecutors Office thanking Trooper Jon McKee for his professionalism and dedication:

24 September 2012,

I am a Deputy Prosecuting

Attorney with the Spokane County Prosecuting Attorney's Office. I am sending this letter to express my appreciation of Trooper McKee and to commend him for his professionalism and diligence in the performance of his duties. Trooper McKee testified as a BAC technician in State v. Kienel (report #110902243; case #C00823666). This was the first trial Trooper McKee testified as a BAC Technician. He presented himself to the jury as a relaxed and credible witness for the State. Furthermore, he was not the actual technician who had maintained the BAC instrument in question as he was filling in for a fellow trooper who was unavailable to testify. Trooper McKee proved his credibility to the jury through his honest and straight forward testimony. Specifically, because he was not the actual technician he had to utter the words "I do not know" (or similar phrases) more than once. However, Trooper McKee did an outstanding job of explaining the quality assurance and record keeping process and explained to the jury that he had no doubt as to the accuracy of the test provided by the BAC instrument in question. In my closing arguments I specifically referenced Trooper McKee's testimony that the BAC instrument was functioning properly and delivered an accurate test result. Finally, it was my first trial and Trooper McKee made my job easy through his professional appearance, testimony and presence on the witness stand.

Trooper McKee did an excellent job and I look forward to working with him and all the other professional staff of the Washington State Patrol in Spokane County.

Sincerely,
Geoffrey Kristianson
Spokane County DPA

E-mails received thanking Trooper Grant Campbell and Trooper Andrew Boyer, District 2, for their help and response to a wrong way driver on SR 520:

Dear Trooper Campbell,

Thank you so much for your attentiveness to the scene of last night's accident. I was very altered by the near miss I had with the motorist going the wrong way on 520. Your calm and professional presence was so great. Please thank Trooper Boyer for his brave response. I am very thankful that he was not gravely hurt. Being braced for the head-on collision that didn't occur left me a little jarred by the rear impact, but I will be just fine.

Let me know if there is anything I can do to help.

Thank you both for doing such excellent work.

Regards,
Aaron

To the WSP Troopers and other employees:

I wanted to take this opportunity to write a message of thanks to Trooper Andrew Boyer for his actions on the SR 520 east bridge over Lake Washington late last night. His willingness to put himself in harm's way in trying to stop a wrong-way driver likely spared me and my friend serious injury or possibly even worse.

We were traveling eastbound on 520 last night and I had shifted into the left lane to execute a pass of a slower moving minivan in the right lane. It was more than just a little surprising and scary to suddenly see an oncoming light (only one headlamp on the suspect's vehicle was operating) coming straight for us, and I had to hit the brakes hard and swerve back to the right in order to avoid a very serious collision. Because the minivan was traveling beside us at that point, we needed to give it a moment to pull ahead before cutting back into the other lane.

Had Trooper Boyer not taken the brave action of trying to stop the wrong-way driver with his own vehicle, putting himself at considerable risk, the suspect would have been traveling at a much higher rate of speed down the bridge when we encountered him. The damage caused to the suspect's vehicle and the loss of momentum from the earlier collision probably gave us that extra second we needed to get out of harm's way. I regret not thanking Trooper Boyer last night on the bridge as we inched by his car and the stopped taxi; I'm not sure what had happened had sunk in by that point, but I wanted to take the time to write to correct that missed opportunity.

I'm healthy, safe, and alive today and very thankful we have men and women like Trooper Boyer on the road looking out for us. I would deeply appreciate if you could share this note with him and his commanding officers as an expression of my gratitude. Thank you again for everything that all of you at the WSP do for us.

Sincerely,
James Tsai

Kudos to the dedication and bravery of the WA state Patrol! Just read about Trooper Boyer's brave decision to stop a drunken driver going the wrong way on the freeway. Although I can't remember them all, his action is not only one to protect the public from the dangers of a DUI. I am very grateful for the service provided by our state police, often under dangerous circumstances.

Having been hit by a drunk driver before, I am aware of the complete lack of cognizance on the part of drunk drivers to the hazards they pose to others. Even if a sober driver is not seriously injured following an accident caused by a DUI, the affected driver may be belligerent and threatening after the accident. With the plethora of guns in our society, I am always happy when the police show up to assist with resolving the accident.

Best wishes,
Sigrid Reymond

E-mail received thanking Trooper Ken Roe, District 6, for his assistance:

To whom it may concern,

This compliment is long overdue, but this should not diminish the importance and gratitude. On the night on May 24, 2012, Trooper Roe of the Moses Lake State Patrol office came to the aid of our seventeen-year-old daughter and her best friend on Interstate 90. After having completed a math placement examination for college, the two girls were traveling back home to Ephrata when they encountered a detour on I-90 that allowed them back onto the highway at the Paha-Packard exit. Just as my daughter was accelerating to highway speed a tire blew and they were forced to the shoulder of the road.

My husband and I got the call from the girls at 10:00 and quickly got into our car to go help them out and get the tire changed. We were very worried about these two small, attractive, young women being alone and vulnerable at the side of I-90 and told them to not open the window or door for anyone NOT in a state patrol uniform. After the nerve wracking hour drive, we finally arrived and were so very pleased to see a state patrol car parked behind their car and Trooper Roe coming to their aid to help change the tire.

Trooper Roe was friendly, helpful, kind, and understanding of our worries and the situation involving these two young women. My husband and I thanked him profusely for his help, but the gratitude was so deeply felt that we thought more people should know about what a wonderful experience it was to meet him and how much we appreciate his assistance.

We understand that there was a fatality accident that night which caused the detour, and by the grace of God our daughter was not involved.

Thank you so much for taking care of the girls until we could get there Trooper Roe.

Sincerely,
Hans and Linda Schmidt
